

Maggie's Wings

Called to Earth 09-09-59; Called to Heaven 02-03-02; Called to Flight 07-20-03
(commemorates the first annual dragon boat races in Windsor)

You lost your hair, but not your beauty
They took a breast but not your heart

They tried to cure you from the inside out
Surviving this struggle became a doubt

The angels gathered around your bed
They swooped and danced around your head

They whispered things only you could hear
Finally you smiled and had no fear

You're every female in this space
Blessed with Courage and with Grace

Some live on earth some in another place
Never forgotten is the beauty of your face

Your wings are wide and strong and light
Your spirit oh so calm and bright

Your presence felt, though no longer seen
In places where you've always been

Gently moving wings of white
You're an angel that has taken flight

Maggie's Wings are for every female you know
So gather your spirit, embrace a paddle, and GO!
